

GOWNS BELLES WORE IN 1851 TO ADORN DANCERS AT BALL

Anniversary Celebration in Academy of Music Monday to Be Duplicate of Original Affair Sixty-four Years Ago

Several costumes that enhanced the beauty of belles who danced in the opening quadrille of the "Grand Inauguration Ball" in the Academy of Music sixty-four years ago will be taken from chests and with the lavender shawl from the folds adorn their fair descendants.

The anniversary ball to be given next Monday night, January 24, is being made a replica of the original which was held to open the Academy in 1857. Mrs. Frederick Ives, of New York, will attend the ball in the dress her aunt, Miss Rebecca Wetherill, wore. It is a magnificent yellow satin, and despite the time that has elapsed since it was first worn is today just as beautiful. Humor says Miss Wetherill was the first young lady to step upon the dance floor that celebrated night so long ago.

The artist has consented to take part, wearing a lovely old gown of that period.

The ball is for the benefit of the chorus of the Philadelphia Orchestra, financial support of which has been assumed for the present season by the women's committee.

Talk on "Goya" at Print Club
Mr. William M. Ivins, Jr., curator of prints of the Metropolitan Museum, New York, will speak on "Goya" at this evening's meeting of the Print Club, 1014 Latimer street.
